Pedralonga Albarino 2006

by James Yobski

I used this in the UCLA introduction to wine class. This was clearly the most complex wine of the evening, very light yellow color, explosive nose with notes that are a complex medley of earth and fruit, clearly one of the most pungent Albarinos I've every smelled and tasted, one student said the wine smelled like a warm salad with blue cheese and apples, medium-bodied and full of flavor on the palate, balance and nice clean finish, excellent length too. This wine has it all, clearly one of the best, if not the best, Albarino I've every had.

Here's another wine that I think is perfect for summer. The grape here is Albariño and this wine hails from the northwest corner of Spain where the coastline resembles Ireland. The climate here is very different from the rest of Spain and so are the wines. If Albariño is done right, as with this wine, it reminds me of a blend of the minerality of Riesling and the aromatics of Sauvignon Blanc. Oh, and this wine is completely dry, crisp and clean. See what the buzz on Albariño is about.
